The departure of the American commissioners was without any formalities beyond the presence of several officials to bid them good-bye and success to their mission. Justice Lamar and Mr. Lehmann chatted with their friends, expressing a hopeful view of the outlook and then boarded their private car attached to the regular Lehigh Valley train, due at about midnight tonight. With them in the car is their staff of secretaries and stenographers and several press representatives.

Before leaving the commissioners completed arrangements to keep in close touch with the White House and state department on the various stages of the conference. They declined, however to discuss their mission or the instructions they had received in their conference.

President Wilson last night. With the departure of the American delegates all of the various elements which make up the conference on the troubled Mexican situation, either were at Niagara Falls or enroute. Minister Suarez, of Chile, one of the mediators, leaving during the morning.

Wilson Gives Advice.

As members of the American mission to the Niagara Falls conference set northward today, officials in administrative circles confidently awaited the opening day of the next big scene in the Mexican crisis. President Wilson, it was known, was determinedly hopeful that mediation be developed to a successful conclusion. He has outlined to members of the mission the Mexican situation as he viewed it, with the emphasis that it was the task of the United States unselfishly to attempt to help Mexico set up a government that would attract world recognition as a state with capacity to maintain domestic peace. Instruction to members of the mission were not specific, but the president reiterated that peace in Mexico to him appeared to be conditioned on the elimination of the Huerta administration and the creation of a government that could guarantee an untrammelled election, a solution of the land problem and other dissensions that have led to an internal strife for nearly four years. Comprehensive settlement, the president believed, must be passed on the constitution of the Zapata and Carranza factors besides public interest in territories still controlled by Huerta.

Expect Speedy Settlement.
Gratified at the success which so far has attended their success on the road to mediation and confident of the ultimate success of their peace program, the South American mediators spent today quietly waiting for the formal inauguration here tomorrow.

row of their proceedings. The impression was gained by those who talked with the mediators, that they expect a speedy as well as satisfactory settlement on the problem before them.

The mediators have great faith in the broad patriotism of the Mexican delegates and feel that, while they come nominally as representatives of the Huerta government, they have at heart the interest of the Mexican people as a whole, and will listen to any proposals which aim to give their country a stable government.

"We have no idea how long the conference will last," said Emilio Rassa, the leader and spokesman of the Mexican delegates. "It may take three days or three months. We shall be governed entirely by our instructions. We are, however, very hopeful—very confident of a successful adjustment."

After the conference is over they will return to Mexico City, said Mr. Rana. It has been reported that they will visit Europe.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, May 19, 1874. If our citizens intend to observe Decoration Day it is time that arrangements to that end were made. We understand that General Kilpatrick desires to lecture in this city about that time, and if asked to do so would deliver an oration, free of charge, at the cemetery of decorated graves of soldiers. This is an unusual opportunity to obtain an accurate orator and one who would add much to the occasion. Who will move in this matter?

Sons of Temperance had a goodly company in the Y. M. C. A. rooms last evening, the attendance of ladies and gentlemen being very large. The commencement of the business and the close are enveloped in mystery, which it would be perilous to disturb. Quarters, solos, readings, speeches and recitations kept the same alive for about an hour, until the diversion resounded with laughter.

The proposal of the Bower City people to give a series of outdoor concerts is attracting much attention, but the scheme has not yet taken a practical form.

A memorial is in the course of signing for presentation to the council embodying the last aspiration of Goethe as he sank to his final rest, "More Light." The citizens are becoming restive under the regime which transforms them into utter darkness.

A disgraceful act of vandalism was perpetrated last evening. Messrs. Webb & Hall during many years had a thermometer at their door, corner Main and Milwaukee streets, in which place it has been convenient for public reference. Last night somebody endeavored to carry away the thermometer in question, and failing to secure the fragile instrument as a prize, the marauder destroyed the glass tube and bulb, which contained the mercury. Such an outrage deserves severe reprehension.

Notice has been given for the second quarterly meeting of the Janesville convocation of the clergy of the Episcopal church to take place in the Trinity church this evening.

Tax Sale Held: The annual tax sale was held this afternoon at the county treasurer's office and passed off with smoothness and dispatch.

The Hardest Part. It takes some speakers quite awhile to get started, but stopping is the really difficult achievement.

URGES PREPARATION FOR SUMMER DROUGHT

FARMERS SHOULD RAISE GREEN FEED TO SUPPLEMENT PASTURES IN DRY SPELLS.

CROPS RECOMMENDED

Corn, Oats, Cow Peas, Cane and Various Combinations Are Suggested As Valuable Rations.

(By Al B. West.)

The old time farmer used to be largely at the mercy of wind and tide, but by the use of modern inventions the number of days no longer waits for favorable winds. The old time farmer too, was largely at the mercy of the "season." If the season was too dry, crops failed or were short, cows went dry, and the price of feed soared. In fact, many present day stock county farmers are still at the mercy of the "season."

Every summer when the "dry spell" comes on the farmer comes to market, loads his wagon with dry feed to supplement the brown pastures, and in spite of his cows' shrink in milk and his pocketbook gets even thinner than his cows. However, these "droughts" ought not to be. Now is the time to plan to take advantage of the weather man and use one's brains to avoid this calamity. Calling to one's aid scientific farming.

Green feed is better for milk production than dry grain, and is cheaper for the farmer to grow feed upon his farm than to haul it from his nearest market, hence he should, unless he has a supply of silage, be putting in silage crops to meet the shortage pretty sure to come sooner or later. A cow that decreases in milk production in July or August is not likely to get back to normal flow during the lactation period in which the flow was shortened, so the loss is not temporary, but likely to continue after the dry season is over. In an article in the Gazette May 2nd the writer recommended corn, both sweet and field, planted in succession for silage purposes for stock county farmers.

Other Crops for Soiling. However, for those who for any reason do not find it expedient to raise corn for soiling purposes, there are a number of other crops which will give excellent results and which have some advantages over corn. Station, where conditions are not likely to be very different from those which obtain in Rock county, a succession of soiling crops have been used for the last two years to supplement the pastures.

There were sown first some early maturing oats and Canada field peas about April 5. Two weeks later some later maturing oats and Canada field peas were sown with the grain drill, as below:

The first were ready for cutting about June 15, just after the first cutting of alfalfa was to be available, and the second sowing was ready for use two weeks later.

By the time these were gone alfalfa was ready to use again. For the next crop there was sown in succession about ten days apart, amber fodder cane and cow peas. Two crops, beginning with amber fodder cane on May 5 and following it with the cane and peas together May 15, then oats and peas, and finally other sowing of cane and peas. This supplies green feed from July 10 to Sept. 20. When their place is taken by millet sown July 10 and used from Sept. 20 till heavy frost.

Of all these crops, with the exception of alfalfa, the cane and cow peas are perhaps the most valuable, but the cow peas being injured by frost, are used either very early or very late.

Sown together they make a feed that is not only more palatable than cow peas alone but is more nearly balanced in nutrients than the cane alone, owing to the protein in the peas.

In sowing the fodder cane alone upon rich ground it is best to drill in the seed with a grain drill, using all the drills. This will give finer stalks with less fiber than if sown further apart. About seventy pounds of seed per acre are required.

In using cow peas and cane together, thirty pounds of cane is used with one bushel of cow peas, the latter being sown separately, also with the drill.

Soy beans are also recommended as a soiling crop and by some believed to be even better than cow peas, since they are more hardy and it is claimed they will grow under more adverse conditions, withstanding drought if they get a good root growth before drought sets in.

Both plants are rich in nitrogen and are classed as soil builders.

Aside from the value of the soiling crops in supplying green feed when pastures are short from lack of rain, their use enables the farmer to keep more cows on fewer acres than where pasture alone is used, also at less expense.

At Ames, Iowa, in 1911, which was a dry season, counting and devoted to pasture and soiling crop, each cow was kept the entire season on 74 of an acre, while farmers depending on pastures alone were allowing 2 1/2 to 3 acres for a cow.

In 1912 each cow was kept on about 6 of an acre, at an expense counting rent of land, labor, seed, etc., of only $6.62 for the entire season. In this case cows were kept in pasture at night and in forenoon. About 2:30 p. m. they were put into the barn and given freshly cut green feed. They were sprayed to relieve them of flies and they were able to feed in comfort during the hottest part of the day and the milk flow was kept up.

The writer is this year trying the experiment of keeping three cows and a horse upon two acres of pasture and about one-quarter of an acre of amber fodder cane and cow peas, with alfalfa and a succession of sweet and field corn.

The amber cane and soy bean were sown with a hand drill in alternate rows ten inches apart. One sowing has just been made the middle of May, and another will be sown about two weeks later.

For the villager or resident in the suburbs who keeps a cow or two, the soiling crop system is especially to be recommended, as it will enable him to keep his cows on a small amount of land.

ALUMNI BANQUET TO BE DISPENSED WITH

Present Plans, If Formulated, Will Mean The Withdrawal of Annual Reception to Seniors.

If the present plans of the Janesville high school Alumni Association are not objected to by the majority of the old-grads, it will mean that all further alumni banquets will be dispensed with.

Perhaps the best reason for such a course being taken, is the failure of the alumni to get out to the banquet themselves, which has affected extensively the financial backing with which to run the receptions. Instead of the four or five hundred couples who should attend, only a few are present, and a scarce two hundred in all are able to be counted on the evening of the banquets. The affair given last June, was perhaps the best of its kind ever held in the Janesville high school. A very small crowd attended, and a smaller number paid their dues. After totaling the sum received through the dues and the cost per plate, it was found that the reception was a financial failure. The large graduation class last June, who were the guests of the old-grads, were of course exempt from paying dues, and had enough of the alumni been present at the reception, the expense could have been met more easily. The present state of affairs makes conditions look dubious as to there being a 1914 alumni reception to the outgoing seniors.

Jealousy of A Mother Bull Dog Drives Councilman and Three Others to Perches

The agility of a Janesville councilman and three employees of the street department were demonstrated one day last week, when a mother bull dog treed the four men in various safe retreats in the barn on the corner of Wall and Jackson streets. The story came to light yesterday on how close a new member of the council came to losing a valuable portion of his trousers.

A pure blooded bull dog belonging to a police officer was the proud mother of seven puppies two weeks ago, and faithfully guarded them in a safe retreat in the old church building, now used as a warehouse for city equipment and as a stable for city horses. Cautiously the other three slid down from their perilous perches and were just about ready to make a grand exit through the door. Becoming suspicious of the grammar her addresser used mother bull dog cast a sidelong glance at the retreating parties, which was sufficient. More growls and baring of teeth culminated by a rush, sent the three strategists back to the perches to wait for help.

For some reason the dog suddenly lost all faith in mankind and one afternoon last week the councilman and three other men were in the barn. One of the men started toward the mother and behold there were immediate signs of hostility. A deep guttural growl, blazing eyes and bristling hair warned the intruders that there was danger ahead. Thinking that kindness would soothe the charmed beast, one of the men started toward the wrathful mother, but one step was all he took in that direction.

There was a flash of white teeth and more flashes of men seeking safety. Curses, screams and a vigorous and the top of the scaffold were all inhabited, while mamma bull dog held reign over all she surveyed. And according to the details of the story she surveyed things for a considerable space of time, much to the discomfort of the councilman and his three assistants. Strategem was at last resorted to. The councilman moved that someone should distract the violent lady while the other three broke for less cramped quarters. Well and good. One of the street employees heaped praise, flattery and even curses upon "mother's" head to draw her attention. Cautiously the other three slid down from their perilous perches and were just about ready to make a grand exit through the door.

The councilman moved that someone should distract the violent lady while the other three broke for less cramped quarters. Well and good. One of the street employees heaped praise, flattery and even curses upon "mother's" head to draw her attention. Cautiously the other three slid down from their perilous perches and were just about ready to make a grand exit through the door.

Becoming suspicious of the grammar her addresser used mother bull dog cast a sidelong glance at the retreating parties, which was sufficient. More growls and baring of teeth culminated by a rush, sent the three strategists back to the perches to wait for help.

For some reason the dog suddenly lost all faith in mankind and one afternoon last week the councilman and three other men were in the barn. One of the men started toward the mother and behold there were immediate signs of hostility. A deep guttural growl, blazing eyes and bristling hair warned the intruders that there was danger ahead. Thinking that kindness would soothe the charmed beast, one of the men started toward the wrathful mother, but one step was all he took in that direction.

There was a flash of white teeth and more flashes of men seeking safety. Curses, screams and a vigorous and the top of the scaffold were all inhabited, while mamma bull dog held reign over all she surveyed. And according to the details of the story she surveyed things for a considerable space of time, much to the discomfort of the councilman and his three assistants. Strategem was at last resorted to. The councilman moved that someone should distract the violent lady while the other three broke for less cramped quarters. Well and good. One of the street employees heaped praise, flattery and even curses upon "mother's" head to draw her attention. Cautiously the other three slid down from their perilous perches and were just about ready to make a grand exit through the door.

ANXIOUS STUDENTS AWAIT TRACK MEET

Financial Success Saturday Will Allow Winning Athletes A Chance Of Going To Ripon Events.

It is indeed surprising to note the extensive interest taken by the Janesville high school student body over the inter-class track and field meet Saturday afternoon of this week, at the Park Association Grounds. The athletes will be themselves so anxious to encourage their classmates to take part in the various events. The day will be a big one, providing showers and wind stay away from the city for a few hours at least.

Coch Curtis hopes that the meet will prove a benefit, not only for the contestants and the school but financially. A successful amount of gate receipts will aid Curtis materially in sending the winners of the event Saturday to the Ripon meet, which athletic affair involves a great deal of expense for transportation alone. Providing the student stock to their word the entire day will be out for the honors of their respective class on Saturday afternoon.

The premiums and trophies have been received and are placed in the display windows of Hall and Saville, jewelry firm, on South Main street, for the public eye to glance at. A large trophy cup standing twelve inches high is to be presented to the class gaining the most points. A smaller individual trophy will be given as a permanent gift to the athlete scoring the highest number of counts.

An addition, Coach Curtis has printed, three ribbons for each event, to be presented to the winners of first, second and third place in each sport. Pictures of the athletes during the past year at the high school are also in the display window.

HICKORY STREET NINE TRIMMED BLUFF SLUGGERS

August Plogart, pitching for the Hickory street baseball nine, was the mainstay for his team on Sunday, when he twirled a winning game against the Bluff street team, winning 11 to 4. Another game is scheduled for next Sunday. The lineups of the teams follow:

Sport Snap Shots

Hughie Jennings is not in the least ashamed of his string of twirlers. He says that Coveleskie and Miles Main have convinced him that they have hit a real winning stride and may be relied upon to take the big percentage of their games. Boehler and Johnny Williams, he thinks, will show the class sooner or later, as they both have lots of latent stuff. With these four and with Dubois, Dausa and Hall, Hughie feels that he has a fair group as will be found in many a day's journey.

There is some discussion as to whether Ricardo, a dark-colored catching recruit with the Giants, is a Cuban or a Mexican. Ricardo himself insists that he is a Cuban, which is good judgment on his part at this season. However, Pepe Conte, an expert on Latin accents, tried out Ricardo on the Spanish language and after Ricardo muffed several chances, Conte began to doubt the former's claim to an island origin. Just the same, McGraw says that he, young man looks good and has a fine chance to stick.

If Hank O'Day manages to stick with the Cubs he will have a time of it trying to land the team as well up as they have managed to land within the past decade or so. With the Cubs in their present shape the feat would be a high impossibility. It has been ten years since they finished lower than third and in eight of those seasons they finished no worse than second.

In the past two years there were but two pitchers who managed to pitch more innings for the season than did Christy Mathewson. In 1912 Alexander nipped ahead of Mathewson in this matter and in 1913 Tom Seaton pitched a few more innings. But the dope seems to show that Charley Dooin, Philie manager really worked these two men too hard and he had been a little easier on them his chances for a pennant would have been plumper. The truth remains that Mathewson can go more innings per season with success than any other pitcher discovered yet. The two mentioned outdid him for the two seasons, but they suffered as a result.

John McGraw's plan to take a movie operator along with him is coming in for quite a little discussion. Many opine that McGraw is quite sure to have real proof to show the next time someone hits him from behind.

Johnny Evers has completely forgotten the unpleasant incident that had over him last winter. He is well pleased with his present situation in Boston and is strong for the Braves and their chances. It is certain that Johnny will be a big card with the Boston crew wherever they appear and he'll help a lot in their quest of the pennant.

The White Sox are winning quite a little respect this year owing mostly to their excellent pitching staff. And Combs has hinted that his bunch is going to provide the big surprise of the year.

LITERARY CLUBS TO CLOSE SEASON SOON

Boys' Societies Prepare to Finish Year's Work—Regular Meetings Were Held Last Night.

Both the Forum and Rusk Lyceum Literary societies at the high school are reviewing their work of the year, and making preparations to close the season with a social. The boys have accomplished much during the year, in the line of forensic work. The Roberts rules of order, under their capable critic, Prof. J. T. Shenor. Both clubs will hold picnics this spring. Following are the programs given at the regular weekly sessions of both clubs, held last evening:

"How to Judge a Debate." Prof. Shear Original song. George Spohn Debate: "Resolved, that the Labor Unions are a menace to the Public." Kober and Brownell of the affirmative, von Mier Birmingham and Fisher on the negative. Extremes tonic. O'Brien Chairman of the evening. Ferguson Rusk Lyceum.

The following program was given by the Rusk Lyceum at their meeting last night:

Roll call answered by: "Whether or not you believe a college education is beneficial, and give your reason." Debate: "Resolved, that youth is the age of greatest efficiency." Dear the age and Craig on the affirmative lost to McVicar and Smiley on the negative. Reading by Smiley. "Reconstruction of American Ports." John Heath. Adjournment.

AMUSEMENTS

THE APOLLO
What is possibly the strongest scenes in "Paid in Full" which is being shown at the Apollo, is where with every means of escape blocked, imminent Joe cowers under his realization and begs and pleads with his wife to go to his employer that night and square his indebtedness "the way other women have squared things for their husbands." Emma shrinks from him in horror, but finally agrees, and after telephoning to Williams, leaves on her mission. The Captain's great love for Emma conquers his brutal desires, and with an appreciation at last, that "deceit is the right thing after all," he signs the release of Joe's indebtedness.

Emma returns to Joe with her mission completed and with his misappropriated $16,850 paid in full. She spurns Joe's further attentions and leaves his house. Emma secures her divorce and finds a haven in the arms of Jimmy Smith, to whom she pledges her love.

SHEEP FEEDING AT EDGERTON IS OVER

Estimated That 77417 Have Passed Through Yards Since Last Fall.

The last of the sheep finished for market at the Edgerton feeding yards were sent out early this week, practically closing a very successful season, according to reports received here. Since the movement of sheep from the western ranges last fall there has passed through the Biederman yards 77,417 sheep, or 287 double deck cars; 2,568, or 36 carloads of hogs; 375 head, or 14 cars of cattle; and 188 head, or 9 cars of horses. The bulk of the stock unloaded at these yards was stopped in transit for a few days to a week for rest and fill, but over 3,000 head of sheep and lambs were put on full feed and finished for market, and of these about 10,000 were fed by local parties. In the amount of feed consumed there was handled 3,457,600 pounds, or about 60 carloads of mill screenings, 533,325 pounds of or 231 tons of hay, and 25,000 pounds of corn. The hay was almost entirely purchased of farmers in this locality, furnishing an excellent market for this surplus. Before marketing, about 12,000 sheep and lambs were sheared here.

CLINTON

Clinton, May 19.—Charles Stores, who has been working for H. A. Rowe in the garage, had the misfortune to have three fingers of his left hand very painfully injured yesterday afternoon by having a heavy motor fall on his hand. It may be necessary to amputate the end of one finger. Mr. Stores has been very unfortunate lately, having met with several accidents to his hands.

H. A. Christman, residing near Shopiere, brother of W. F. Christman of this place, died at his home Sunday morning. Mr. Christman was eighty-four years old and was hale and hearty for his years until he suffered a stroke of paralysis four or five weeks ago. Born in Oneida county, New York, he died several years ago. His young bride about 1850, settling on the farm near Shopiere where he has lived ever since and where he died. Mrs. Christman passed away seven or eight years ago, and the oldest son also died several years ago. A son, Harrison, residing on the old farm, and Mrs. Henry Sweet of Virginia, survive. Funeral arrangements have not been made at this time.

Mrs. Hoffman of Chicago is visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. W. S. Northway.

Mrs. Anna Greenman and Mrs. Marie Lord of Utica, New York, are visiting their cousin, W. F. Christman, and family.

The annual supper at the Bergen church last evening was a success and as usual several auto loads of people went out from Clinton.

John Christman of Evansville spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Christman and sister, Mrs. E. L. C. Hatch.

Notice of the application of the marriage license for Miss Minnie Woolerman of this place to Robert Hall of Elkhorn has been published. Venerable William Duthie who used to live here in the place now owned and occupied by Charles Whitlock on North Church street, died yesterday (Monday) at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles Bornton, near Avon.

Mrs. Duthie has been ill a long time and recently suffered a stroke of paralysis and never recovered from the effects of that.

While returning from the Bergen supper last evening along the piece of road being constructed, Dr. C. W. Colver ran his auto into a large stone concealed in the loose dirt thrown up by the grader, and damaged his car quite badly, besides jarring the occupants of the car severely.

THE RECALL AND HIS GILL.

HI GILL, who was recalled in disgrace as mayor of Seattle two or three years ago, has just been re-lected by a majority of something like 15,000. When Gill was recalled, it was announced with a fine flourish of trumpets that the action of the people justified the recall law. Gill as mayor had flagrantly violated the statutes and had turned the town

over to the saloonkeepers, the gamblers, and the harlots. Seattle was made the home of bestiality and vice,

and her good people resenting such an infiction recalled the mayor and elected in his place a man devoted to law enforcement. The recall law had been vindicated. It sounded pretty too, until three or four months later when another recall election was precipitated against Gill's successor. He was enforcing the laws too strictly. It was asserted, so the heaven-born recall was reconstituted to dump him.

And now HI Gill is mayor again.

Chosen by the votes of those same patriots who recalled him from that office and who a little later used the recall against his successor. Hiram must look upon our elective system as a joke. It has been demonstrated to his satisfaction that verdicts at the polls mean little or nothing and that today's filth may be the target of the contumelious stone tomorrow. As mayor of Seattle, therefore, it is up to him to play the demagogue, seeking ever by charlatanism to win the public and appease the unreasonable mob. Seattle, where the recall has been most frequently employed, proves to us that that law is worse

that futile in its practical operation.

Its tendency is directly toward confusion, disorder and instability, and it places a premium upon the election of unworthy men, by creating the impression that they can be disposed of easily if they prove unsatisfactory. It does more. It impresses officials with the idea that it is dangerous to do their duty unless that duty happens to conform with the demands of the rabble. It is a dangerous and an un-

American doctrine.

The state of Washington leads Wisconsin in reform measures, and works

the recall to the limit, as will be noticed by this scrap of current history from a local paper. "HI Gill" was too corrupt and his successor was too pure. The recall is a snare and delusion.

A REFORMER GONE WRONG.

If there is one thing above another that is being demonstrated in this age

it is the fact that the most dangerous man in the republic is the professional reformers. When a man feels under the necessity of proclaiming his own virtues and posing as a reformer it is a sure sign that there is something the matter with his head and his heart. Being conscious of his own faults he is afraid that his friends and neighbors and the public will discover them and so in order to conceal his own faults and ward off suspicion he immediately begins to preach about his own virtues and the faults of others.

This is the moral motive and mental attitude of the average reformer and they have carried on this practice to such an extent and have exploited themselves so persistently in the present age that they are making the name of reform odious and every reformer is beginning to be looked upon with suspicion.

These observations are suggested by the recent exposure of a typical reformer, Lucius N. Littauer, former congressman and wealthy glove manufacturer of Gloversville, N. Y. Mr.

Littauer has posed as a reformer in politics and he was always referred to by Roosevelt as the model business man in politics. Mr. Littauer has now been found guilty of defrauding the government by smuggling in diamonds without paying the duty. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to pay a fine of $1,000 and serve six months in jail, but owing to ill health, the judge was merciful and suspended the jail sentence.

It will be remembered that this same Lucius N. Littauer was one of the reformers who went to Chicago to Republican convention to support

Colonel Roosevelt against President

Taft.

When you see a reformer coming in sight the only safe thing to do is clap your hand on your pocket book—

Lyons, New York Republican.

TAFT ON MEXICO.

When Taft left the office of president he left behind him the heritage of the present Mexican trouble for the incoming administration to settle as they saw fit. That he had given the matter due consideration and deliberation is most certain and what he says

just at the present time is worth considering. An exchange in commenting upon recent statements he has made,

says:

"Americans in great numbers will concur in the opinion of ex-President

Taft that it was a blunder on the part of his successor to lean to the side of the so-called constitutionalists in Mexico. Mr. Taft says that there is no popular pressure for war which the administration at Washington could not resist, and that if in our course toward Mexico during the last year we had not exerted our direct influence as we have to aid one of the contending parties we should not now be so near general intervention and war."

Mr. Taft is impressed with the obvious costliness of war with Mexico, and the small likelihood that this country could expect any return for it either in a material way or in the form of gratitude on the part of the Mexican people. He agrees with President Wilson that whatever war may eventually should be a war of servitude, not a war of conquest. He sees that this would be very difficult, as the public would clamor for the annexation of land by way of compensating the outlay of money.

"The ex-president sees the difficulties of mediation, but heartily approves of the attempt, and considers the administration's acceptance of the advances from Argentina, Brazil and Chili as a great step toward the future solution of international difficulties in this hemisphere."

The municipal civic council plan an innovation in the establishment of free dental service for children whose parents are unable to pay for treatment of diseased molars that are a serious handicap to the capability of the children in schools. This idea has passed the experimental stage in other cities and its benefits are far-reaching.

Now is the time to prepare for that

Fourth of July celebration by making your contribution to the fund necessary to insure its success. The committee on finance will call on you and if they do not, call on them.

It really looks as though the Janesville fair is going to be one of the biggest and best fairs held in southern Wisconsin this coming season if the work being done at the grounds is any criticism.

In all the rush to catch up with the delayed spring work, the business men of the city do not want to forget that just at the present time there is a rare opportunity to secure a first-class factory for the city.

CANDIDATE ROETHE TO SPEAK TONIGHT AT CORN EXCHANGE

WALKING EDITOR FROM FENNIMORE VISITS JANEVILLE ON CAMPAIGN TRIP.

WILL EXPLAIN ISSUES

On High State Taxes and Extravagance of Administration Will Be Driven Home in Plain Speech.

Henry E. Roethe, the walking editor from Fennimore, the first republican candidate for governor to announce himself in the 1914 race, arrived in Janesville at ten o'clock this morning, and will speak at seven-thirty o'clock this evening at the Corn Exchange square.

He will have some "cowhide" facts to present on high state taxes, administration extravagance and home rule.

"I've got some plain facts that are mighty interesting to the people of Wisconsin," said Roethe, "and I'll be everywhere I have been I find them eager to get at the truth concerning this high tax proposition. I've been here for four weeks and have covered some four miles. Of course, I don't walk all the time but take the train wherever it is convenient and when it will serve to save time. I don't want to make a good man a good country town, but otherwise I would miss. I often stop and talk to farmers on my route and have met with a most cordial reception."

Candidate Roethe was in Green County last week and closed the week with a rousing meeting Saturday night at Monroe. He started out Monday at New Glarus where he spoke at ten o'clock. He talked to Monticello, a distance of six miles, and spoke for one hour before dinner. He caught the train to Albany where he gave another hour's address, then he went to Evansville, a distance of twelve miles, and gave another hour's talk there at eight o'clock last night.

Up bright and early this morning he started out at five-thirty; took the 6:30 train for Portville where he gave another hour's address, then he went to Orfordville, eight miles, made another half hour speech and was through in time to get the ten o'clock train for Janesville. After a few calls this morning he went to Portville where he rested until two-thirty when he went to Milton to make an address this afternoon. He will return in time to give an hour's talk here tonight and tomorrow will proceed to Clinton and Beloit, thence to Walworth county.

He will start northward next week in order to arrive at Green Bay for the convention of Wisconsin rural mail carriers. He is a delegate from his home city. In addition to being editor of a thriving weekly he is also a substitute carrier on one of the six rural routes out of Fennimore. He is the first of a substitute carrier to be named as a delegate to a state convention.

Roethe travels "without baggage" of any sort and is dressed in plain clothes well adapted to his strenuous life on the road. He boasts of a pair of cowhide shoes which were a present to him from Edward Payson Weston, the veteran American pedestrian, who sent him to him when he learned of Roethe's scheme to travel over the state on foot in the interests of his candidacy. The shoes are identical with the footgear used by the famous transcontinental traveler.

"I was the first man in the state to foresee that the issue of the campaign would be high taxes. I took their breath away at Madison when I made my announcement early in the year. I have been a steady ground from the start. I have two bushels of unsolicited letters from men all over the state endorsing my stand."

Roethe's platform is well known. It is succinctly given on a small advertising card which he hands out and reads as follows:

"What I Pledge Myself to Veto:

"Every bill that creates a new office, board or commission.

"Every bill for an appropriation not absolutely needed.

"Every bill that reaches the executive chamber.

"Every bill making larger appropriations to the university.

"Every bill for larger appropriations for roads and bridges.

"Every bill tending to centralize everything at state capital.

"Every bill that would increase expenditures can be reduced $5,000,000.

"I advocate: Less offices, boards and commissions, reduction of appropriations, fewer laws, shorter sessions, less state university and other institutions, no more new buildings at present, doing away with state aid in building roads, more home rule."

Janeville citizens will be especially interested in Mr. Roethe's address this evening for in addition to the pertinent things he will have to say in regard to the Wisconsin political situation, it will be recalled that he is a native of the town of Janesville and was an instructor for several years in the Janesville high school.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Argue Tomorrow: Attorneys W. H. Dougherty, for the city, and E. H. Ryan this morning agreed upon Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock for arguing the case of the city of Janesville before Judge Maxfield in the municipal court.

IS GROUND TO DEATH UNDER FAST FREIGHT

MAURICE MCCARTHY IS KILLED IN HORRIBLE MANNER MONDAY NIGHT.

COUSIN DROVE ENGINE

Relative Bearing Same Name Was Engineer on St. Paul Locomotive Which Crushed Out Life.

Maurice McCarthy, aged thirty-two years, whose home is on the corner of Pleasant and Chatham streets, met death last night when freight train number 166 on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad struck and ground his body in a horrible manner. Investigation shows that McCarthy had gone down the Mineral Point division tracks to sleep in a barn and probably fell to the tracks as a part of the train due shortly after nine o'clock.

This morning it was learned that McCarthy's cousin, who bears the same name as the victim of the accident, was the engineer on the freight train that crushed out the life. The freight train was double headed, Morris McCarthy being engineer and James McCarthy being fireman on the locomotive ahead and Joseph Bates and Freeman Siebert on the engine behind.

Engineer McCarthy stated that on coming into the yards, the train was picking up the man's clothing which lay directly across the tracks but because of the momentum of the heavy train and engine behind, was unable to stop for some distance.

With both locomotives passing over the body and a long string of cars, McCarthy was literally ground to pieces. Railroad employees and the police had the unpleasant task of picking up the man's clothing which were found strewn along the right of way for a distance of two blocks. This morning employees at the company's roundhouse found portions of the body near the water tank, nearly a mile from where the man was struck.

The dead man was identified by his hat and shoes by two companions, M. Gagan and Thomas Mulcairns, who were with McCarthy when he was before he departed down the tracks. He had planned to spend the night in a barn belonging to Gagan. These facts together with the identification of the man's clothing which was found this morning proved beyond question that the man killed was McCarthy. The remains were taken to Ryan's morgue and relatives notified.

Mrs. McCarthy suffered a severe shock this morning when he was told that the victim of the accident was his cousin.

The deceased is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mary McCarthy, a sister, Mrs. Vera Fraunfelder and brother, John, all of Janesville.

Funeral services will be held at the St. Patrick's church Wednesday morning at nine o'clock.

BELOIT GREEK HELD FOR BREAKING JAIL

Attempts to Escape Hauling Ashes at County Jail But Is Caught by Beloit Chief of Police.

Evidently Theodore Karapulas, a Beloit Greek, had no faith in jails, for yesterday morning the Greek violated his trust and made a break for liberty from the Rock county jail into which he was committed for six months from the Beloit court for breaking into a countryman's store in that city Sunday week, being behind the bars. Monday morning he was placed at work hauling ashes in the rear of the jail.

After receiving his instructions from Tuckey Wogan, the Greek started to work. After watching him for a moment industriously shoveling ashes into the wheelbarrow the turnkey left him and went into the jail. Two minutes later the wheelbarrow was found discarded and no Karapulas was in sight. Search was made in Janesville and knowing that the prisoner would make tracks for Beloit, Sheriff Whipple phoned Chief Quarman of the Beloit department. A Beloit man on the interurban car who knew the Greek saw him trudging along the dusty roadway and on learning the way the man was going Chief Quarman went up the road in an automobile. The fugitive was found near the Fenton farm in the afternoon. He was taken to the jail and the Greek expressed his innocence of committing a crime and Judge Maxfield adjourned his case until July 27th. Under the provisions of the commitment law Karapulas is liable to a year's term in state prison.

WERE MARRIED AT HIGH NOON TODAY

Neva Luella Davis of La Prairie Weds Ralph Howard Smith of Plainfield, Illinois, in Pretty Ceremony.

A very pretty wedding took place at high noon today at the home of T. C. Davis, in the town of La Prairie, when a daughter, Neva Luella, was united in marriage to Ralph Howard Smith of Plainfield, Illinois, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Joseph Chalmers Hazen of the Baptist church of this city.

The bride was dressed in a beautiful gown of white satin with overlace trimmings. She wore a veil decorated with lilacs and lilies of the valley, and carried a large bouquet of white roses. She was attended by Miss Lulu Chambers of Darlington, William Weller of Plainfield, Illinois, acting as best man.

The home was trimmed with pink and white carnations and sweet peas, with ribbons of the same color streaming about the top of each room. Smilax vines added to the appearance of the occasion.

Following the ceremony a three-course luncheon was served, at which thirty guests attended. Among the invited guests were Mrs. Amos Smith, mother of the groom, Mrs. John Anderson and Mrs. Scott Morse, sisters of the groom, all of Plainfield, Ill.; J. C. Devereux of Evansville, grandnephew of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. John Wall of Union, Wis.; Mrs. Samuel Slaver and the Misses Augusta and Helen Brunzell of Madison; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rinehimer of Plymouth, Wis.; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Durand, Illinois; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Davis of Janesville; Mrs. C. M. Davis of Evansville, and the Misses Gladys Huggins, Lela Ramage and Leta Wilcox of La Prairie.

OFFICIAL WARNING ISSUED ON MONDAY

Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association Sends Out Circular To Licensing Boards.

Every licensing board of city, village or town in the state is urged to eliminate undesirable saloonkeepers in a circular sent out yesterday by Oscar H. Morris, manager of the education bureau of the Wisconsin Association of Wholesale Liquor Dealers. The letter says in part:

The undersigned organization has at heart the welfare of residents and taxpayers in every city, village and township in Wisconsin, and is still making special efforts to improve conditions pertaining to the liquor trade. But it is imperative that the licensing boards of cities, villages and towns assist us and at the same time improve conditions wherever necessary.

The granting of saloon licenses to unfit persons should be stopped. We respectfully urge that no license be granted to any person whose license has been revoked within the preceding twelve months, as provided by law, for selling liquor to minors, or to intoxicated persons, or to any applicant who has persisted in violating any law regulating the liquor traffic.

We recommend that the character of a person applying for a retail license be carefully scrutinized so that no license be issued to any of bad character; to no one who himself drinks to excess; to no one who permits minors and loafers to congregate about his place; to no one who permits loud, boisterous and rowdy conduct in his place; to no one who does not keep his place clean and sanitary, both inside and outside, and in full compliance with all regulations pertaining to health and sanitation; to no one who so conducts his place as to disturb his neighbors and constitute a nuisance.

TWO THOUSAND PLUMBERS SECURE STATE LICENSES

Over 2,000 Wisconsin plumbers have secured state licenses as contractors, masters or journeymen since the new plumbing law went into effect on Oct. 22 last. Most of these secured their licenses under the waiver provision of the law, but none for masters or journeymen will be issued in the future without examination. Examinations were held at Madison, April 22.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat BY RUTH CAMERON

EVEN AS YOU AND I.

IN THE corner of my study is a little wicker basket, in which there live two little balls of fur, one of silver gray and one of sable. As I write, the little, black pussy is on the floor beside the basket meowing piteously. Someone has taken her out of the basket and she wants to get in. At the same time the little silver pussy, who is inside the basket, is putting her head over the edge of it and cautiously measuring the fearful distance to the floor. Since he is not a cat that is addicted to resting on the floor, but by the way, have almost as much individuality and character as people (a veterinary told me that there are some cats who perpetually cry and fuss, and others who will purr when they are suffering intense pain, and I have found it true) but it is evident that if the gray pussy believed in vocal protests he would make one. For just as eagerly as the black kitten wants to get into the basket, the gray kitten wants to get out. Evidently kittens are very much like people. It's a funny old world, isn't it?

Presently I shall go over to the basket and take the gray kitten out and put the black kitten in, and very soon, I know (from previous experience as (dear ex machina) that the black kitten will be wanting to get out again and the gray to get in. Even as you and I.

On my desk lies a letter from an anonymous letter friend. In it she tells me of wanting something for many years. "I worked for it and prayed for it with all my heart," she said. Finally, I guess the Lord must have decided that the only way to teach me it was bad for me was to let me have it. And now, of course, I give almost anything if my prayer hadn't been granted.

My letter friend should have read Emerson's, "Be careful what you pray for, for all sincere prayers are granted."

"What a fine, unhampered life you have," a benedict said to a bachelor.

"Oh, yes," sighed the bachelor, "but I'm lonely. It must be wonderful to have someone who cares for you or dis-"

If fate should take the benedict out of the basket of matrimony and put the bachelor in, do you think they'd be any more satisfied than my kittens? Certainly not.

That's not the way of this funny, old world of ours, where, as the colored preacher put it, "Life, my brethren, am mostly made up of prayin' for rain an' den wishin' 't would clear off."

THE KITCHEN CABINET

The mind may feed on fancy, but the matter of fact stomach imperiously demands something more substantial.

Diet cures more than the doctor.
SOME WAYS WITH MEATS.

A tasty way of cooking a rabbit is the following: Joint and wash a rabbit, drain it, slice up two Spanish onions; take a saucepan, lay in a thick layer of onions, then a layer of rabbit, a sifting of flour, pepper and salt, another layer of onions, and proceed until all the rabbit is used, finishing with the onions. Place the saucepan over a moderate fire and when heated draw to one side and let simmer very gently for two hours or more. As in this cooking there is no water added, it is necessary that it be slowly and carefully cooked to keep from scorching. Serve with mashed potatoes. The rabbit may be put into a casserole and covered, then baked in the oven.

Chicken Terrapin.—Melt two tablespoons of butter, add one of flour, and when well cooked a half cupful of cream and a teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of pepper and mace. When boiling stir into this a cupful or more of chicken, with two hard-cooked whites of eggs chopped, and the yolks put through a ricer, add two tablespoonsful of orange juice and serve at once.

Shepherd's Pie.—Cut enough butter into inch-pieces to make a cupful. Cut from three to four medium sized potatoes in dice and put them in a baking dish; add half a cupful of stock or water and a tablespoonful of butter cut in bits. Season with salt, pepper, and a bit of mint, and cover with potato crust.

Mutton Hash.—Take a pound of cooked mutton, cut in small pieces and add to the following sauce: Cook together one onion and two tablespoonsful of butter, then add one tablespoonful of flour, various seasonings, like mushroom catsup, marjoram, parsley and salt; add the meat, and when hot serve on toast.

Mix one cupful of cold cooked chicken cut in cubes, one cucumber pared and cut in cubes, one cupful of chopped English walnut meats and one cupful of French peas. Marinate with French dressing, arrange on a serving dish and garnish with mayonnaise dressing.

Tango, and the Complexion

The strenuous exercise of the Tango has the effect of improving the general health and so naturally helps to improve the complexion. It has also forced most women to discard face powders because they rub off so readily and fill the pores, making the skin-breathing impossible.

If pore-clogging powder was discarded, a plain spumax lotion, there would be a beautiful complexion, and rough, scaly, unlovely skins would rarely be seen. This lotion is easily prepared at home. Just get from your druggist 4 ounces of spumax and dissolve in either a pint of water or witch hazel and add 10 drops of glycerine. The spumax lotion is fine for hot days as it will not streak and one application lasts an entire day, keeping that shiny, oily appearance that is so much disliked. It cleans the skin and it cannot be detected and it lends a gentle charm to the faintest complexion.

Why French Women Have Few Wrinkles

Modern women marvel at the velvety softness of the face which treats the European gracefully when, in reality, it is neither so soft nor so young which makes the difference. It is only the difference of care and the use of proper treatment which marks the difference between the wrinkled and the smooth skin. The heavy massage is one of the secrets of the French. It makes the skin and skin dabbly, while the use of a cream, vegetable jelly cream, takes little time and with some brushes and protects the skin. It will not grow hair nor clog the skin and acts immediately. Just massage one ounce of almond (rose) oil and a few drops of glycerine over your face, and then apply the paste thus made to the wrinkled surface. At the very first application you will feel a slight drawing and know the fact that the blood is more active in the region which is covered. This is the stimulation of the face muscles and the supply of fresh-building material brought to the surface at the place it is needed which will demonstrate its power to smooth the skin and stimulate it so that the surface becomes perfectly healthy.—Advertisement.

Women Worth While

MRS. JAMES A. O'GORMAN.

(By Selene Armstrong Harmon.)
SHE'S the foremost mother of them all!

Even Mrs. Joseph Tumulty, wife of the secretary of the president, with five little Tumulties all that's the way to her lap and crowds about her knees. Mrs. O'Gorman, wife of the Senator, is something that seems to give individuality to each of their members, so the O'Gorman family is one of the most interesting in public life at present.

Like every other woman who ever married before her twentieth birthday and gave the succeeding twenty years of her life to soothing syrups and settling rings, Mrs. O'Gorman retains an amazing youthfulness. Perhaps this is because he has grown up all over again with each of her children. To this day she has the freshness of complexion and the enthusiasm of viewpoint which a debutante might envy.

Notwithstanding the various cares and responsibilities which attended the rearing and educating of her children, Mrs. O'Gorman found time to spend nearly twenty consecutive summers traveling abroad with her husband. At first, when the O'Gorman children were too young to profit from the view of a cathedral or an art gallery, they were placed in some convent or private school in America while their parents traveled. Later it was no uncommon thing for Senator—then Judge—O'Gorman to engage passage for himself and Mrs. O'Gorman, five or six little O'Gormans and one or two competent nurses. Arrived in Europe, a governess or two would be attached to the O'Gorman party that the children might learn the languages and history during the itinerary. Nor did Judge O'Gorman ever permit a press of private business to interfere with this summer program of travel and study. It took an extra session of congress, after he had entered public life, to keep the O'Gormans on this side of the Atlantic during the summer.

Mrs. O'Gorman is as well read as she is widely traveled. A fully stocked library is a feature of her home at Cleveland Park, one of the residence sections of the capital. Here she and the senator spend most of the hours which are not included in their working day.

Mrs. O'Gorman cares little for society in the usually accepted sense of the word, and takes little part in it aside from a strict observance of the social duties attached to her duties as the wife of a public man. She is a devout Catholic and active in the work of many church organizations.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Oil paintings should not be hung in too dim a light. They will lose much of their brilliancy.

Leather chair seats that have become dull and soiled may be freshened by rubbing with the white of an egg, then polishing with a clean soft cloth.

To prevent cured meat from molding or flies from bothering it, rub well with powdered borax and hang where it is dry.

Vegetables may be made stiff if dipped in alcohol and hung up inside to dry.

THE TABLE.

Chocolate Roll with Vanilla Sauce.—Three eggs, one cup of powdered sugar, one cup of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, three tablespoonsful of boiling water. Beat the whites of the egg to a stiff froth and add gradually the powdered sugar. Beat the yolks until thick and add. Sift the flour and baking powder together thoroughly and add to the first mixture with the water. Spread as thinly as possible on a baking sheet and bake in a moderate oven, turn on to a clean cloth and spread with the following filling. Melt two squares of chocolate and add to it one-half cup of sugar, one-half cup of water and one teaspoonful of butter. Mix one and one-half tablespoonsful of cornstarch with one-half cup of milk and add to the mixture. Cook over hot water eight minutes. After spreading the filling over the cake roll like jelly roll and wrap in the cloth until set. To serve, cut into slices and serve with vanilla sauce made from one cup of water, one-half cup of sugar, two tablespoonsful of cornstarch, two tablespoonsful of butter and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Mix the sugar and cornstarch, add the water and boil five minutes. Remove from fire and add butter and vanilla.

20 Mule Team Borax

"The Marvelous Aid to Soap"

Softens the Hardest Water

One teaspoonful to the gallon—works wonders in the laundry and household

20 Mule Team Borax is a marvelous aid to soap, and should be used wherever soap is used. It increases the cleansing power of soap, and produces wonderfully improved results. Borax makes everything hygienically clean, because it is an antiseptic and a purifier, as well as a cleanser. Use it in the Laundry to make your clothes whiter; in the Kitchen to cut grease from pans and dishes; in the Bath to soften the water and cleanse the pores of the skin; and use it all about the house for all cleansing purposes. There is nothing better.

utes, and then bake, uncovered, until the crumbs are well browned.

Queen Cake.—Two-thirds cup of butter, two cups of flour (sifted), whites of six eggs, one-quarter cup of powdered sugar, one and one-half teaspoonsful of lemon juice. Cream the butter, add the flour gradually, mixed and sifted with soda, then add the lemon juice. Beat the whites of the eggs until stiff; add the sugar gradually, and combine the mixtures. Bake fifty minutes in a long shallow pan. Cover with Opus Caramel frosting.

Boiled Celery.—Have ready a saucepan of boiling water, with a little salt in it. Wash the celery carefully, cut off the outer leaves, make the stalks even and lay them in small bunches. Put these into the water and let them boil gently until tender, leaving the sauce pan uncovered. When done, drain and place them on a plate of food which has been dipped in the liquor. Pour over them on a little white sauce and serve. If the celery is young and tender it will require three-quarters of an hour to cook; if old, one hour and a half.

FREE ADVICE TO SICK WOMEN

Thousands Have Been Helped
By Common Sense
Suggestions.

Women suffering from any form of female ill are invited to communicate promptly with the woman's private correspondence department of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established a confidential correspondence which has extended over many years and which has never been broken. Never have they published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the Company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which they have to draw from, it is more than possible that they possess the very knowledge needed in your case. Nothing is asked in return except your good will, and their advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Address Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free and only obtainable by mail. Write for it today.

His Worries.
"Clarence," said the American helplessly, "I think that you should be told at once how my father made his money. Our business men in this country have methods which to one of your pure soul, whose motto is 'Noblesse oblige,' cannot but—"
"Cease, Mamie, cease," said the young lord reassuringly. "Tell me no more. However he made his millions I can forgive, for your sake. But—er—has he still got them all right?"

IF YOU ARE A DRINKING MAN

You had better stop at once or you'll lose your job. Every line of business is closing its doors to "drinking" men. It means your ruin. By the aid of ORINE, thousands of men have been restored to lives of sobriety and industry. We assure you that ORINE will benefit you, but we say to you that if after a trial it fails to get any benefit from its use, your money will be refunded.

When you stop "drinking," think of the money you'll save; besides, sober men are worth more to their employers and get bigger wages.

Only $1.00 a box. We have an interesting booklet about ORINE that we're giving away free on request. Call at our store and talk it over.

The PLACE of HONEY- MOONS HAROLD MAC GRAT Pictures by C.D. RHODE

Mrs. Harrigan felt her heart sink. The duke and James together meant nothing short of a catastrophe; for James would not know whom he was addressing, and would make all manner of confidences. She knew something would happen if she let him out of her sight. He was eternally talking to strangers.

"Would you mind telling Mr. Harrigan that I wish to see him?"

"Not at all."

Nora stopped at the end of the ballroom. "Donald, let us go out into the garden. I want a breath of air. Did you see her?"

"Couldn't help seeing her. It was the duke, I suppose. It appears that he is an old friend of the duchess. We'll go through the conservatory. It's a short-cut."

The night was full of moonshine; it danced upon the water; it fired the filigree tops of the solemn cypress; it laced the lawn with quivering shadows; and heavy hung the cloying perfume of the box-wood hedges.

"O bellissima notte!" she sang. "Is it not glorious?"

"Nora," said Abbott, leaning suddenly toward her.

"Don't say it, Donald; please don't. Don't waste your love on me. You are a good man, and I should not be worthy the name of woman if I did not feel proud and sad. I want you always as a friend; and if you decide that cannot be, I shall lose faith in everything. I have never had a brother, and in the two short years I have grown to look on you as one. I am sorry. But if you will look back you will see that I never gave you any encouragement. I was never to the ballroom with my eyes red. You will never know how a woman on the stage has to fight to earn her bread. And that part is only a skirmish compared to the ceaseless war men wage against her. She has only the fortifications of her wit and her presence of mind. Was I not abducted in the heart of Paris? And but for the cowardice of the man, who knows what might have happened? If I have beauty, God gave it to me to wear, and wear it I will. My father, the padre, you and the Barone; I would not trust any other men living. I am often unhappy, but I do not inflict this unhappiness on others. Be you the same. Be my friend; be brave and fight it out of your heart."

Quickly she drew his head toward her and lightly kissed the forehead. "There! Ah, Donald, I very much need a friend."

"All right, Nora," bravely indeed, for the pain in his young heart cried out for the ends of the earth in which to hide. "All right! I'm young; maybe I'll get over it in time. Always count on me. You wouldn't mind going back to the ballroom alone, would you? I've got an idea I'd like to smoke over it. No, I'll take you to the end of the conservatory and come back. I can't face the rest of them just now."

Nora had hoped against hope that it was only infatuation, but in the last few days she could not ignore the truth that he really loved her. She had thrown him and Celeste together in vain. Poor Celeste, poor lovely Celeste, who wore her heart upon her sleeve, patent to all eyes save Donald's! Thus, it was with defined purpose that she had lured him this night into the garden. She wanted to disillusion him.

The baron, glooming in an obscure corner of the conservatory, saw them come in. Abbott's brave young face deceived him. At the door Abbott smiled and bowed and returned to the garden. The Barone rose to follow him. He had taken but a step forward, when a tableau formed by the door, causing him to pause irresolutely.

Nora was face to face at last with Flora Desmond.

"I wish to speak to you," said the Italian abruptly.

"Nothing you could possibly say would interest me," declared Nora, haughtily and made as if to pass.

"Do not be too sure," insolently. Their voices were low, but they reached the ears of the Barone, who wished he was anywhere but here. He moved silently behind the palms toward the exit.

"Let me be frank. I hate you and detest you with all my heart," continued Flora. "I have always hated you, with your supercilious airs, your whose father—"

"Don't you dare to say an ill word of him!" cried Nora, her Irish blood throwing hauteur to the winds. "He is kind and brave and loyal, and I am proud of him. Say what you will about me; it will not bother me in the least."

CHAPTER XIII.
Courtlandt Tells a Story.

The colonel and his guests at luncheon had listened to Courtlandt without sound or movement beyond the occasional rasp of feet shifting under the table. He had begun with the old familiar phrase—"I've got a story."

"Tell it," had been the instant request.

At the beginning the men had been leaning at various negligent angles—some with their elbows upon the table, some with their arms thrown across the backs of their chairs. The partridge had been excellent, the wine delicious, the tobacco irreproachable, Burma, the tinkle of bells in the terrapies, the strange pictures in the bazaars, long journeys over smooth and stormy seas; romance, moving and colorful, which began at Rangoon, had zig-zagged around the world, and ended in Berlin.

"And so," concluded the teller of the tale, "that is the story. This man was perfectly innocent of any wrong, a victim of malice on the one hand and of injustice on the other."

"Is that the end of the yarn?" asked the colonel.

"Who in life knows what the end of anything is? This is not a story out of a book." Courtlandt accepted a fresh cigar from the box which Rao passed to him, and dropped his dead weed into the ash-bowl.

"Has he given up?" asked Abbott, his voice strangely unfamiliar in his own ears.

"A man can struggle just so long against odds, then he wins or becomes broken. Women are not logical; generally they permit themselves to be guided by impulse rather than by reason. This man I am telling you about was proud; perhaps too proud. It is a shameful fact, but he ran away. True, he wrote letter after letter, but all these were returned unopened. Then he stopped."

"A woman would a good deal rather believe circumstantial evidence than not. Humph!" The colonel primed his pipe and relighted it. "She couldn't have been worth much."

"Worth much!" cried Abbott. "What do you imply by that?"

"No man will really give up a woman who is really worth while; that is, of course, admitting that your man, Courtlandt, is a man. Perhaps, though, it was his fault. He was not persistent enough, maybe a bit spineless. The fact that he gave up so quickly possibly convinced her that her impressions were correct. Why, I'd have followed her day in and day out, year after year; never would I have let up until I had proved to her that she had been wrong."

"The colonel is right," Abbott approved, never taking his eyes off Courtlandt, who was apparently absorbed in the contemplation of the bread crumbs under his fingers.

"And more by hook or crook, I'd have dragged in the other woman by the hair and made her confess."

"I do not doubt it, colonel," responded Courtlandt, with a dry laugh. "And that would really have been the end of the story. The heroine of this rambling tale would then have been absolutely certain of collusion between the two."

"That is like a woman," the Barone agreed, and he knew something about them. "And where is this man now?"

"Here," said Courtlandt, pushing back his chair and rising. "I am here. He turned his back upon them and sought the garden."

"Dash me!" cried the colonel, who, being the least interested personally, was first to recover his speech.

The Barone drew in his breath sharply. Then he looked at Abbott.

"I suspected it," replied Abbott to the mute question. Since the episode of last night his philosophical outlook had broadened. He had lost Nora, but had come out of the agony of love refused to fuller manhood. As long as he lived he was certain that the petty affairs of the day were never again going to disturb him.

"Let him be," was the colonel's suggestion, adding a gesture in the direction of the casement door through which Courtlandt had gone. "He's as big a man as Nora is a woman. If he has returned with the determination of winning her, he will."

They did not see Courtlandt again. After a few minutes of restless to-and-fro, he proceeded down to the landing, helped himself to the colonel's motor-boat, and returned to Bellaggio. At the hotel he asked for the duke, only to be told that the duke and madame had left that morning for Paris. Courtlandt saw that he had permitted one great opportunity to slip past. He gave up the battle. One more good look at her, and he would go away. The odds had been too strong for him, and he knew that he was broken.

When the motor-boat came back, Abbott and the baron made use of it also. They crossed in silence, heavy-hearted.

On landing Abbott said: "It is probable that I shall not see you again this year. I am leaving tomorrow for Paris. It's a great world, isn't it, where they toss us around like dice? Some throw sixes and others deuces. And in this game you and I have lost two out of three."

"I shall return to Rome," replied the Barone. "My long leave of absence is near its end."

"What in the world can have happened?" demanded Nora, showing the two notes to Celeste. "Here's Donald going to Paris tomorrow and the Barone to Rome. They will bid us good-by at tea. I don't understand. Donald said was to remain until we left for America, and the Barone's leave does not end until October."

"Tomorrow?" dim-eyed, Celeste returned the notes.

"Yes, you play the fourth ballade and I'll sing from Madame. It will be very lonesome without them." Nora gazed into the wall mirror and gave a pat or two to her hair.

When the men arrived, it was impressed on Nora's mind that never had she seen them so amiable toward each other. They were positively friendly.

And why not? The test of the morning had proved each of them to his own individual satisfaction, and had done away with those stilted mannerisms that generally make rivals ridiculous in all eyes save their own. The revelation at luncheon had convinced them of the futility of things in general and of woman in particular. They were, without being aware of the fact, each a consolation to the other. The old adage that misery loves company was never more nicely typified.

If Celeste expected Nora to exhibit any signs of distress over the approaching departure, she was disappointed. In truth, Nora was secretly pleased to be rid of these two suitors, much as she liked them. The Barone had not yet proposed, and his sudden determination to return to Rome eliminated this disagreeable possibility.

She was glad Abbott was going because she had hurt him without intention, and the sight of him was, in spite of her innocence, a constant reproach. Presently she would have her work, and there would be no time for loneliness.

The person who suffered keenest was Celeste. She was awake; the tender little dream was gone; and bravely she accepted the fact. Never her agile fingers stumbled, and she played remarkably well, from Beethoven, Chopin, Grieg, Rubinstein, MacDowell, and Nora, perversely enough, sang from old light opera.

When the two men departed, Celeste went to her room and Nora out upon the terrace. It was after five. No one was about, so far as she could see. She stood enchanted over the transformation that was affecting the mountains and the lakes. How she loved the spot! How she would have liked to spend the rest of her days here! And how beautiful all the world was today!

Dinner Stories

Phoebe was bored. In all the long years of her life she had never spent such a miserable day. In short, Phoebe nearly lifted the nursery ceiling off.

Upstairs came Phoebe's mother. Lifting the unhappy child up in her arms, and cuddling the tear-stained little face against her own, the mother walked over to the looking glass.

"Just look, Phoebe, at the ugly little face in the looking glass!" Phoebe immediately became interested and stopped crying.

"Which one, mother?" she asked.

knew nothing, and their books, of which he knew less. Presently the maiden asked, archly, "Of course, you've read 'Romeo and Juliet'?" He floundered helplessly for a moment and then, having a brilliant thought, blurted out, happily: "I've read 'Romeo!'"

District Attorney Whitman of New York said the other day of a business man who had failed, disastrously: "He didn't work hard enough. He was too self-confident. That is why he failed."

With a laugh the district attorney added: "He who feels sure that the world has an opening for him is apt to land in a hole."

Her Frugal Mind.

A man whose illness threatened to develop into typhoid was taken to the hospital. Instead of growing worse he improved, and at the end of the fourth day, when his wife visited him, he asked to be taken home. "But you have paid for a week," replied his thrifty spouse. "They won't refund the money. You had better stay your week out."
